ABOUT

At present I am a student of University of Birmingham's Coding Bootcamp. I have worked on individual projects from creating random password generators using JavaScript all the way up to being a part of a team of five and creating a food app that not only looks very impressive and a state of the art but also has any properties that would be useful to the everyday user and also the ones that feel a little ignored in society. Have a little peek at my personal profile to see for yourself at all my projects.
